PARENT

Why should Parents use the School Liaison?

School Liaisons offer parents information, resources, and support that can address an array of issues that occur when relocating, getting settled, getting ready for deployment and more. When relocating, your School Liaison can provide information about local schools, services and programs, as well as curriculum requirements and school sanctioned sports and clubs. Regardless of your location or your branch of service, there is a School Liaison available to assist.

Parents can use the School Liaison as their go-to person for information about education, education protections, education options and more. The School Liaison is here to help eliminate some of the stress associated with education, whether you're moving, staying settled, retiring, or deploying.

EDUCATOR

Why should Educators use the School Liaison?

Educators who use the School Liaison have a valuable asset at their fingertips. The School Liaison can provide additional insight to military-connected youth. School Liaisons work with education agencies to help provide resources and services to better support the military-connected family, the educators and the communities in which they thrive.

Working with the School Liaison provides resources that can be used by all students in the school, including peer to peer programming, non-clinical counseling services, grants, and mentorship opportunities through the local installation. Utilizing the School Liaison provides insight to better support military-connected youth.

COMMAND

Why should Commands use the School Liaison?

Commands that utilize the School Liaison understand the key support that can be provided to help enhance mission readiness. When Commands are confident in the education services for their members youth, they can now focus on mission requirements, and are informed if there are any upcoming education changes or challenges that could impact this readiness.

Commands know quality of life is a key component in military members choice when relocating, or extending their service. Education is an important component in quality of life, in which School Liaisons can provide information on.

“Education is a shared commitment between dedicated teachers, motivated students and enthusiastic parents with high expectations.” - Bob Beauprez
